F. D.'S PROGRAM HIT IN FORMAL SENATE REPORT

Judiciary Committee Says President's "Real Purpose" Covered

10 SOLONS SIGN NAMES

Others Refuse To Join In Important Action

WASHINGTON, June 14—(UP)—The senate judiciary committee today called on congress to defeat President Roosevelt's "dangerous" supreme court reorganization program "so emphatically that its parallel will never again be presented to a free American people."

The committee majority presented the most controversial constitutional issue of many years to the senate in a formal report that denounced the administration judiciary bill as tending to:

1. Obscure the "real purposes" of the administration.
2. Underline the American constitutional system.
3. Push the supreme court by force and unconstitutionally subjecting it to the will of the executive department.
4. Break down constitutional safeguards against "autocratic dominance."

But the report, approved by 10 of the 18 members of the committee, was far more than an adverse recommendation against the bill.

Authorities Voice Beliefs Into its pages went the words and philosophy of some of the senate's most famous legal authorities.

In clear, concise language that only occasionally indicated the intensity of the senate conflict or the drama of a high hour in constitutional history, the majority report set up the argument advanced by the administration in support of the bill, and then sought to demolish it point by point.

It went, too, beyond that province gently to remind the supreme court that it must "take account of the advancing strides of civilization." Definite terms for (Continued on Page Eight)

Murder Theory Heard In Parsons Abduction

District Attorney Orders Complete Search of Stony Brook Property for Missing Woman

STONY BROOK, N. Y. June 14—(UP)—State and local authorities searched the countryside again today on the theory that the facts of Mrs. William H. Parsons' disappearance indicate murder rather than kidnapping.

The search was planned despite an appeal by the husband of the missing Long Island society matron for complete privacy to facilitate contact with "the person or persons responsible for her disappearance."

Representatives of the Suffolk county district attorney's office will search the house and grounds of the Sammis estate at Huntington today. Mrs. Parsons had an interest in the estate, it was said. This move was accepted as a subsequent development of Assistant District Attorney Harry C. Brenner's announcement that his office feared Mrs. Parsons had been murdered.

F. B. I. Chief Silent Although the break between federal and local authorities has been healed, Earl J. Connelly, inspector for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in charge of all investigative forces, refused to commit himself on the search plans.

Parsons' appeal to reporters, the public and all law enforcement agencies to leave the vicinity of his home, was the highlight of a week-end of many rumors but few tangible developments.

The directors who were defendants in the suit were William E. Martin, Upper Sandusky; Joseph Van Meter, Waverly, and B. B. Smith, Fremont.

Martin and Van Meter were accused of "making a political football, causing numerous delays and arbitrarily increasing the cost of the flood control projects." No specific charges were made against Smith.

Judge J. W. Adkins, of Circleville, participated in the action.

STATE C. OF C. CHIEF ASSAILS WAGE-HOUR BILL

WASHINGTON, June 14—(UP)—George B. Chandler, secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, told the house and senate labor committees today that "South Carolina fired on Fort Sumter for a far less pretext" than the pending wages and hours bill.

Chandler charged the bill was a "perversion of federal authority and an inexcusable invasion of the rights of a state."

He urged an amendment barring goods produced in foreign countries with lower standards than the act sets up.

Speaking "from the point of view of an invaded state," Chandler said: "There is a wide-spread conviction on the part of manufacturers that something approximating a soviet system of espionage, with subsequent reprisals, is either now in actual operation in this country, or is in store for the near future."

Bethlehem To Be Forced To Suspend Operations

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 14—(UP)—More than 7,000 coal miners in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia went on strike today as the United Mine Workers, most powerful labor organization in the country, and the steel workers organizing committee joined forces in a supreme effort to win a strike against three independent steel companies.

The strike affected the so-called "captive" mines operated by Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, whose refusal to sign a contract with the steel union precipitated the worst steel strike in 18 years. Ordered by John L. Lewis, head of the U. M. W. of A., the walkout was designed to halt the flow of coal to the struck companies and close their plants.

DARLINGTON, England, June 14—(UP)—The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who performed a marriage ceremony for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in defiance of Church of England authorities, said today that he intended to visit the United States for a holiday during which he would make a preaching and lecture tour.

He said today that he could not yet give details of his visit to the United States, but he expected to be there for two months.

Jardine intends also to pay a visit to the duke and duchess in Austria, it is understood.

Jardine denied reports that he might become domestic chaplain to the duke.

Returning from a vacation yesterday, Jardine found what he called "just a personal kindly letter" from the duke. Then in his sermon last night he announced his resignation as vicar of St. Paul's church. Just at the end of his sermon he said:

Reports Monday were that Mayor Gessaman would intervene in the building crisis. Clarence E. Palmer, president of the contractors' association, said no conference had been held and none arranged.

The Building Trades Council called a strike last Thursday at a construction job on N. High street, charging the contractor refused to pay prevailing wages to common laborers.

Norton & Nadalin, contractors on the courthouse addition, are working as usual. The firm is not a member of the Columbus organization of contractors.

INCOME FOR 1937 MAY REACH HIGH MARK SINCE 1929

WASHINGTON, June 14—(UP)—National income in 1937 may reach $70,000,000,000 highest point since 1929, department of commerce statistics indicated today.

A survey by the department showed that national income produced in the United States last year was $63,800,000,000, an increase of nearly $9,600,000,000 from the previous year and about $4,000,000,000 above preliminary estimates for 1936.

Commerce officials estimated "in view of continued business and industrial expansion, that national income this year would be approximately $7,000,000,000 higher than last year."

At the same time, another commerce survey was published showing that customers of department stores made a larger proportion of their purchases on a credit basis but paid for them more promptly during 1936 than during 1935. The statistics showed that the average monthly collection percentages on charge accounts was 47 percent, an increase of two percent over the previous year.

George B. Chandler, secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, told the house and senate labor committees today that "South Carolina fired on Fort Sumter for a far less pretext" than the pending wages and hours bill.

Chandler charged the bill was a "perversion of federal authority and an inexcusable invasion of the rights of a state."

He urged an amendment barring goods produced in foreign countries with lower standards than the act sets up.

REBELS TO FALL TO NATIONALIST ARMY THIS WEEK

Rebels Shatter Defenses Of Loyal City After Concerted Attack

MAY ENTER THURSDAY

Gen. Davila Uses Fourth of Available Men

By JOHN DE GANDT
NATIONALIST FIELD HEAD-QUARTERS OUTSIDE BILBAO, June 14 — (UP) — Nationalist troops, smashing through the iron ring defenses of Bilbao, looked down on the city today and jubilantly looked forward to its fall.

The Basque loyalist defense seemed shattered and the nationalists advanced all along the line east of the city. Their superiority in men, organization and spirit apparently was overwhelming and the final attack seemed delayed only because of Gen. Davila's insistence that all of the dominant hills outside the city be occupied and consolidated first.

There were unofficial predictions that the nationalists would enter the ancient Basque capital, which has resisted many sieges in a 700-year history on Thursday, which marks the end of the 11th month of the civil war.

Breach Widened
A breach 1 1/2 miles wide in the loyalist "El Gallo" fortifications southeast of the city was extended to a line of 2 1/2 miles.

Repulsing three loyalist counter-attacks, the nationalists drove on, took Larrabezua, 4 1/2 miles east of the suburbs, and thence drove on to threaten Galdacano, only 2 1/2 miles from the outskirts.

Nationalist troops took Santa Marina hill, only three miles northeast of the suburbs.

Farther north, moving in irresistibly, nationalist shock troops moved on the Archañeta hills, which dominate the city's northern side.

Reynolds Packard, of the United Press war staff, and I have stood for hours in the hills along the nationalist advance lines watching this great battle.

We can see the smokestacks of the Althornos industrial suburb, and the loyalists retreating through fields, blasted by nationalist artillery fire, toward Galdacano, seeking shelter in haystacks, barns and small patches of pine woods.

The nationalist advance was systematic. Favored by good weather, Gen. Davila moved reinforcements into the line frequently.

Nationalists advanced steadily yesterday. The ground was too rough for motor transport and the troops made use of mules and two-wheeled carts of the type used by the Romans 2,000 years ago, drawn by oxen and even by cows. Thus they were able to bring up supplies across country or over roads which had been blown up.

Planes, Artillery Used Supported by artillery and airplanes, the nationalists without difficulty widened their front inside the El Gallo fortification line.
Planes and artillery remained in action almost continually.

Today is the fourth day of the great battle. It was estimated that Gen. Davila had used only about one-fourth of the men he has mas-sed in this front. The fall of Bilbao seemed beyond doubt a matter of days, barring a chance in the weather or an unexpected powerful loyalist counter-attack.

Loyalist resistance seemed to ease as the advance proceeded.
The shattering artillery and airplane fire made defense futile, apparently, and few loyalists remained to challenge the infantry after the preparatory bombardments.

Today the city was closely invaded from north, east and southeast. The most determined loyalist resistance was on the nationalist left flank, southeast of the city, but even here a real stand seemed hopeless.

Just Tom Cats

Knowing your tom cat amounts to a good deal more than you may think it does, because when you discover a good sized lump of new kittens the first thought to you is, which ones get the nearby creek, chloroform or sacked and delivered to some "kind friend" a few miles away. But in case you may want to hold on to a couple for rat catchers, the toms get the chance to stay, but how are you to get the right ones when they are such teeny little things. And this "know how" is where the news comes in, because it's something different and that's news.
Now then, the little toms never wear more than two colors while their sisters may have a half dozen or more. This story is handed down from that great circus man, the late Phineus T. Barnum who offered $500 to anyone who would bring him a tom cat with more than two colors. Of course, P. T. has joined the angel band of showmen now, but it won't do a bit of harm to investigate his statement and in cases you may want to collect you'll know where to find him.

Barnum, you remember, said
"There was a new fool born every second" and that was the reason why he was in the show business.

Donahey Lashes Policy Followed in Congress

WASHINGTON, June 14 — (UP) — Senator Vic Donahey of Ohio today condemned the "blank check" method of making appropriations, stating that such a policy of public spending is "indefensible unless a grave emergency exists."

In one of his rare utterances on public questions, Sen. Donahey said that congress since 1933 has appropriated more than $15,000,000,000 on a discretionary basis. "I am opposed to discretionary appropriations as a matter of principle," he said.

Disadvantages Cited

Sen. Donahey said he found these disadvantages in discretionary appropriations:

1. "If used where no emergency exists, congress' constitutional power is foolishly given away.
2. "By giving its auditing power over to the executive branch, congress violates the trust placed in it by the electorate.
3. "With congressional auditing power gone, checks on expenditures become of little consequence.
4. "After giving up its auditing power congress becomes powerless to correct abuses.
5. "As soon as discretionary appropriations are granted, the sense of national economy is lost and the executive departments then hasten to spend all the money for fear some funds will remain unspent.
6. "Discretionary appropriations are directly opposed to the system of checks and balances which is one of the basic principles of our government."

He said he knew only two justifications for lump sum appropriations—their ability to cut red tape in an emergency and their adaptability to use by "wise planners" for working toward their objectives with a minimum of difficulty.

"If the executive department becomes stronger and stronger at the expense of the other two branches of government, doubtless discretionary appropriations will take on the nature of permanency," he said.

System to be Restored
"On the other hand, if the traditional American system of Jefferson and Lincoln can prevail and federal legislators can regain their freedom from political pressure to do their duty as laid down in the constitution, then the constitutional system will be restored."

Sen. Donahey added that "in Washington only a few Democrats appear to know that he (Jefferson) formulated a basic principle which has been a guiding rule in American government for 150 years."

He said the increase in the federal debt and taxes in ratio to the growth in population raises "the inevitable conviction that all government must be honestly administered if we are to expect all citizens to respect the laws and pay their just shares in taxation."

AT THE GRAND

Two hours of outdoor motor-boating with Walter Catlett at the helm proved to be about the funniest experience ever to come to Barbara Stanwyck, co-starred with Joel McCrea in the Twentieth Century-Fox drama with music at the Grand theatre "Banjo on My Knee." A scene for which was the occasion of the boat trip.

Catlett succeeded in steering the craft in circles, ellipses, spirals, zigzags and in reverse, every way, in fact, except the straight course called for in the script. A comedian of nearly 40 years in vaudeville, revues and films, Catlett never had a more appreciative audience.

McCRODY, ARK. MAN TO BE RETURNED TO HIS HOME

Paul Taylor, of McCrory, Ark., believed an amnesia victim, will be returned to his home, Sheriff Charles Radcliff was notified in a telegram Saturday night. The telegram, from the man's father, J. R. Officers were unable to learn his name for several days. His condition has improved since being in jail.

One of the weirdest love scenes ever screened is that between Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell in "Night Must Fall," now playing at the Cliftona Theatre. Montgomery has abandoned his usual character of the playboy hero for this picture and appears as the criminal villain. He's a bell-boy with a way with women. His charm is literally fatal to two.

Rosalind Russell has the role of a girl who has despaired of romance until his personality awakens her emotionally. But she cannot trust him in spite of his attraction, for she grows more and more certain he is the man police are seeking.

There is tenderness as well as menace in their last scene before the police break in.

Just Tom Cats

Knowing your tom cat amounts to a good deal more than you may think it does, because when you discover a good sized bunch of new kittens the first thought to you is, which ones get the nearby creek, chloroform or sacked and delivered to some "kind friend", a few miles away. But in case you may want to hold on to a couple for rat catchers, the toms get the chance to stay, but how are you to get the right ones when they are such teeny little things. And this "know how" is where the news comes in, 'cause it's something different and that's news. Now then, the little toms never wear more than two colors while their sisters may have a half dozen or more. This story is handed down from that great circus man, the late Phineus T. Barnum who offered $500 to anyone who would bring him a tom cat with more than two colors. Of course, P. T. has joined the angel band of showmen now, but it won't do a bit of harm to investigate his statement and in cases you may want to collect you'll know where to find him. Barnum, you remember, said "There was a new fool born every second" and that was the reason why he was in the show business.

Donahey Lashes Policy Followed in Congress

WASHINGTON, June 14—(UP)—Senator Vic Donahey of Ohio today condemned the "blank check" method of making appropriations, stating that such a policy of public spending is "indefensible unless a grave emergency exists."

In one of his rare utterances on public questions, Sen. Donahey said that congress since 1933 has appropriated more than $15,000,000,000 on a discretionary basis. "I am opposed to discretionary appropriations as a matter of principle," he said.

Disadvantages Cited

Sen. Donahey said he found these disadvantages in discretionary appropriations:

1. "If used where no emergency exists, congress' constitutional power is foolishly given away."
2. "By giving its auditing power over to the executive branch, congress violates the trust placed in it by the electorate."
3. "With congressional auditing power gone, checks on expenditures become of little consequence."
4. "After giving up its auditing power congress becomes powerless to correct abuses."
5. "As soon as discretionary appropriations are granted, the sense of national economy is lost and the executive departments then hasten to spend all the money for fear some funds will remain unspent."
6. "Discretionary appropriations are directly opposed to the system of checks and balances which is one of the basic principles of our government."

He said he knew only two justifications for lump sum appropriations—their ability to cut red tape in an emergency and their adaptability to use by "wise planners" for working toward their objectives with a minimum of difficulty.

"If the executive department becomes stronger and stronger at the expense of the other two branches of government, doubtless discretionary appropriations will take on the nature of permanency," he said.

System to be Restored
"On the other hand, if the traditional American system of Jefferson and Lincoln can prevail and federal legislators can regain their freedom from political pressure to do their duty as laid down in the constitution, then the constitutional system will be restored."

Sen. Donahey added that "in Washington only a few Democrats appear to know that he (Jefferson) formulated a basic principle which has been a guiding rule in American government for 150 years."

He said the increase in the federal debt and taxes in ratio to the growth in population raises "the inevitable conviction that all government must be honestly administered if we are to expect all citizens to respect the laws and pay their just shares in taxation."

AT THE CLIFTONA

One of the weirdest love scenes ever screened is that between Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell in "Night Must Fall," now playing at the Cliftona Theatre.

Montgomery has abandoned his usual character of the playboy hero for this picture and appears as the criminal villain. He's a bell-boy with a way with women. His charm is literally fatal to two.

Rosalind Russell has the role of a girl who has despaired of romance until his personality awakens her emotionally. But she cannot trust him in spite of his attraction, for she grows more and more certain he is the man police are seeking.

There is tenderness as well as menace in their last scene before the police break in.

Two hours of outboard motor-boating with Walter Catlett at the helm proved to be about the funniest experience ever to come to Barbara Stanwyck, co-starred with Joel McCrea in the Twentieth Century-Fox drama with music at the Grand theatre "Banjo on My Knee," a scene for which was the occasion of the boat trip.

Catlett succeeded in steering the craft in circles, ellipses, spirals, zigzags and in reverse, every way, in fact, except the straight course called for in the script. A comedian of nearly 40 years in vaudeville, revues and films, Catlett never had a more appreciative audience.

BARRIE, FAMOUS AUTHOR, NEARLY DEAD IN LONDON

LONDON, June 14 — (UP) — Sir James Barrie, 77, world famous author and dramatist, was gravely ill at a nursing home today. So serious was his condition that relatives and friends had taken turns watching at his bedside since his arrival at the nursing home Friday.

"I am afraid there is little chance for his recovery," said one friend.

The gravity of Barrie's condition was made plain when Lord Horder, physician in ordinary to the king, issued the first bulletin today, after a visit to the nursing home: "Sir James Barrie is suffering from an attack of bronchial pneumonia. Although there was a little improvement this morning, Sir James's condition gives rise to considerable anxiety."

BEGGARS GLEAN $3.70 AVERAGE IN 7-HOUR DAY

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Street beggars in St. Louis work a regular seven-hour day and earn an average of $3.70 a day, according to a survey made by the Bureau for Homeless Men.

The survey, which took nearly two months to complete, was made by two trained observers. It was divided into a downtown survey and a neighborhood survey. The following facts were found in the downtown area:

Not more than 11 beggars were found at any one time, and only 12 regular, full-time beggars, were seen.

A total of 44 different beggars were reported. This number included the 12 "regulars," 9 frequent and 23 intermittent beggars. Ten of the beggars were blind and 11 were crippled or deformed.

The average "earnings" of a full-time beggar was estimated at $3.70, but some were observed to take in as much as 95 cents in one hour. The normal working day was found to be seven hours, the beggars usually starting at 9 or 9:30 in the morning and quitting at 4 or 4:30 in the afternoon.

The ordinary panhandler is interested only in getting 15 or 20 cents. As soon as this amount is received, he quits work.

Despite a stringent city ordinance prohibiting all street begging, St. Louis police seldom interfered with mendicants, it was found.

So far, it was understood, the Barrymores' negotiations had failed. John Barrymore had no comment for publication.

Late-Cut Clover May Reduce Yield of Seed

Ohio farmers who delay cutting red clover until the blooms start to turn brown may reduce possible yields of seed from the second cutting by 50 or 65 percent, according to R. D. Lewis, specialist in agronomy, Ohio State University.

Lewis says there is a special reason for using every precaution to secure good red clover seed yields this year as good stands of clover are scarce and high quality seed probably will bring a good price. Early cutting of the first crop is one of the best ways of insuring better seed yields.

Even if there was no effect on seed yields, the better quality of hay cut at the proper time is ample reason for starting the mower on time. The leaves of the plants contain a lot of the food value in the hay but many of the leaves shatter from over-ripe plants and are lost while the hay is being cured. The loss of leaves can be reduced, Mr. Lewis says, by letting the hay wilt only slightly in the swath before raking it into small windrows. The hay will cure in the windrow and then should be placed in storage with the least possible handling that will cause loss of leaves.

The average dates recommended in Ohio for cutting red clover are: southern Ohio, June 3 to 10; central Ohio, June 6 to 13; and northern Ohio, June 9 to 16. Weather conditions affect the date of cutting but a good rule is to start

FARM NEWS

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

More than 100 farmers in the Mt. Vernon area have adopted erosion control practices on their entire farm. Contour cultivation is used to prevent soil losses on 1,300 acres in that area.

Rotenone is better than arsenicals for controlling currant worm, T. H. Parks, extension entomologist says, but he recommends nicotine dust or spray for currant aphids. Both insects have been troublesome this year in Ohio.

Officials of the manufacturers' association predict 8,000,000 tons of fertilizer will be used by farmers of the United States in 1937. This will be the largest sale since 1930 and a 25 per cent increase over 1936.

Commercial hatcheries set 20 percent fewer eggs in April, 1937, than in the same month last year, and the decrease in salable chicks hatched was 9 percent. The demand for chicks did not improve in the latter part of the hatching season.

Conditions through May have not changed the expectation that the 1937 wheat harvest in the United States will be the largest since 1919 with the exception of 1931. Yields will be below average in some sections but the large acreage will compensate for low yields.

One Columbiana county farmer has planted 40 acres of Spancross C2, which is a hybrid sweet corn recommended by Ohio State University for earliness and quality. An even earlier hybrid is Marcross P39 and for later varieties, Spancross P39 and Golden Cross Bantons are excellent.

Early cutting of the first crop is one of the best ways of insuring better seed yields.

Even if there was no effect on seed yields, the better quality of hay cut at the proper time is ample reason for starting the mower on time. The leaves of the plants contain a lot of the food value in the hay but many of the leaves shatter from over-ripe plants and are lost while the hay is being cured.

The loss of leaves can be reduced, Mr. Lewis says, by letting the hay wilt only slightly in the swath before raking it into small windrows. The hay will cure in the windrow and then should be placed in storage with the least possible handling that will cause loss of leaves.

The average dates recommended in Ohio for cutting red clover are: southern Ohio, June 3 to 10; central Ohio, June 6 to 13; and northern Ohio, June 9 to 16. Weather conditions affect the date of cutting but a good rule is to start when half the clover has bloomed and to be finished by the time plants are in full bloom.

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

More than 100 farmers in the Mt. Vernon area have adopted erosion control practices on their entire farm. Contour cultivation is used to prevent soil losses on 1,300 acres in that area.

Rotenone is better than arsenicals for controlling currant worm, T. H. Parks, extension entomologist says, but he recommends nicotine dust or spray for currant aphid. Both insects have been troublesome this year in Ohio.

Officials of the manufacturers' association predict 8,000,000 tons of fertilizer will be used by farmers of the United States in 1937. This will be the largest sale since 1930 and a 25 per cent increase over 1936.

Commercial hatcheries set 20 percent fewer eggs in April, 1937, than in the same month last year, and the decrease in salable chicks hatched was 9 percent. The demand for chicks did not improve in the latter part of the hatching season.

Conditions through May have not changed the expectation that the 1937 wheat harvest in the United States will be the largest since 1919 with the exception of 1931. Yields will be below average in some sections but the large acreage will compensate for low yields.

One Columbiana county farmer has planted 40 acres of Spancross C2, which is a hybrid sweet corn recommended by Ohio State university for earliness and quality. An even earlier hybrid is Marcross P39 and for later varieties, Spancross P39 and Golden Cross Bantion are excellent.

TAX PROBE

THE administration's drive to lay a restraining hand on the shoulder of the wealthy tax dodger ought to provide the citizenry with the best show that has been put on in Washington since the midget sat in J. P. Morgan's lap.

For it is going to be funny: make no mistake about that. When a multi-millionaire forms a holding company to own his private yacht, rents the yacht from that holding company and then uses the device to whittle down his income tax, he provides a rich spectacle for his humbler fellows, and the congressional committee that is going to look into such things can be expected to make the most of it.

But there is a grim side of it, too. For this sort of thing constitutes just about the most refined and subtle form of disrespect for law that can possibly be imagined. Nothing else could do so much to make ordinary folk feel that there really is a privileged class in this country and that that class is above and beyond the reach of the government.

The income tax, to begin with, is the fairest of all taxes in that it is based squarely on the citizen's ability to pay. If a man's income is very small he pays no tax at all. If it is a little larger, he pays a moderate tax. If it is very large, he pays a very heavy tax.

So far, so good. But if the man in the highest bracket is able to command the services of a lawyer, who can juggle figures until a vast income looks like no income at all, the fairness of this tax system goes out of the window. It then becomes a tax which is levied only on those who are not rich enough to escape it.

When this happens, and when everybody in the country knows that it happens, what is the result?

First of all, the government loses some much-needed income—which it ought to be getting from those very people who are making the most noise about the necessity for balancing the budget.

Secondly, the rich man feels—and has some reason to feel—that he stands above the law: that the government at Washington may have power over lesser folk but that he is in a class by himself.

Thirdly, there develops throughout the country a general feeling that laws apply only to people who are not smart enough to evade them. The swindler, the racketeer, the grafter, the muscle-man—all of these can, and do, justify their deeds by pointing to the richest and most successful men in the community, who, like them, are engaged in dodging through the loopholes in the law, for profit.

That is why this investigation of tax evasions is so important. It is a test of the government's power to make the law apply equally to all. Until that power is firmly established our democracy cannot be perfect.

What ever became of the wolf so long a familiar figure on nearly every doorstep?

Hills did root for him. The moral of his victory seems to be determination and willingness to work. Most of us wish fame and fortune to come to us without effort, and history, past and present, indicates that most of us will take it out in wishing.

So, the Governor will call on the President to help settle the Ohio labor situation. Hasn't Martin heard that there are labor difficulties in other sectors and that the federal government has been able to do little if anything about the situation? As Al Johnson might say, "We ain't seen nothin' yet."

Apparently the Republicans forgot that a municipal election is in the offing, offering only three candidates for the primaries while the Democrats present sixteen. Early odds are

EMPLOYERS MUST SIGN

WASHINGTON — The National Labor Relations Board will shortly issue two of the most momentous rulings in its turbulent history. Both will directly affect, though have no immediate connection with, the current C.I.O. struggle with the independent steel companies.

The Board's decrees will:

1. Require employers not only to bargain collectively with their workers but to enter into agreements with them.

2. Hold that minority groups of workers cannot ask for separate agreements but must abide by the terms negotiated by the majority union.

Both rulings will go squarely to the heart of the present wave of strikes. They will also tackle issues which the Board so far has cautiously side-stepped.

Since the days of the famed Section 7A of the NRA, unions have complained that certain employers were evading compliance with the law by going through the motions of bargaining with them but refusing to sign contracts, and by secretly instigating minority unions which demand separate agreements. Weighted down with injunctions, the Board ducked a showdown on these issues until the Supreme Court had passed on the validity of the collective bargaining act.

DOUBLE-MEANING

The Court's recent decision, while upholding the law, did not conclusively settle the question of the compulsion on employers to sign contracts.

In his majority opinion, Chief Justice Hughes declared, "... the act does not compel agreements between employers and employees..." The Labor Board and certain employer elements differ sharply on the exact meaning of this language.

Employers interpret it to mean that as long as they allow their workers to organize and negotiate with them, they have complied with the letter of the law. They claim they do not have to sign contracts. The Board asserts such an interpretation makes a sham and mockery of the law.

It holds that Hughes did not intend to give employers a loophole to avoid entering into agreements with unions, but was enjoining the Board from prescribing the terms on which they had to get together.

SECRET CONSPIRACY

The dispute is not an academic one. The Board is convinced that this is the nub of most of the labor-employer battling now raging in many sections of the country.

It has confidential information that several weeks ago two national industrial organizations, after careful study of Hughes' decision, secretly advised their members to bargain with their union workers but to refuse to sign any agreements. By this stratagem, they counseled, employers could stay within the law and at the same time combat the unionization of their plants.

To force this undercover attack into the open and bring a showdown on its powers, the Board has decided to kill two birds with one stone.

1. Exclude minority unions from the operation of the Wagner Act;

2. Lay down the flat injunction on employers that they must sign contracts after collective bargaining or be subject to prosecution for violation of the law.

"A nation," says Roger Babson, "is no better than the people who are in it." True and also trite.

DIET AND HEALTH

Causes for Nutritional Deficiency Cited

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YOU MAY HAVE enough vitamins in your diet, as we said yesterday, but your body may not be able to absorb them.

In a recent review of the subject, a Cleveland doctor has listed the following that they result in actual disease. There may be early stages which are not at all clear-cut. Thus Vitamin A is necessary for the integrity of epithelial tissue. While prolonged deficiency may cause inflammation of the eye, the formation of kidney stones, and night blindness, in the early stage there may be just simply some defects of the epithelium of the mouth, nose or throat.

Vitamin B, if deficient for a long time, causes paralysis from neuritis, but a partial deficiency may cause simply loss of appetite and slight dropsy.

Our ancestors, in the spring used to have what they called "black-leg", which consisted in small hemorrhages beneath the skin. This is a minor sign of what would later be scurvy, and was caused by the long winter deprivation of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Deficiency of Vitamin D in a late stage will cause rickets, but before rickets appears there may be some decay of the teeth and softening of the bone.

The anti-anemia factor is now included among the vitamins, although it is manufactured by the body itself and need not be deliberately added to the food.

1. Inadequate intake of food.

2. Absence of some digestive factor necessary for the formation of a specific nutritional element for food (as the intrinsic factor lacking in pernicious anemia).

3. Excessive loss of gastro-intestinal contents by diarrhea or vomiting.

4. Increased need, as in pregnancy and lactation or states of overactive nutrition from thyroid activity.

5. Presence of any toxic state impairing absorption and utilization, such as cancer or poisons from kidney insufficiency, or infection.

6. Anemia in which there is a deficient interchange between oxygen and food tissues.

7. Lack of stomach juice which affects the absorption or production of specific factors from food.

8. Lowered metabolism in which the tissues are working at an abnormally low speed.

9. Impaired glucose tolerance which seems to increase the need or impair the use of at least some of the nutritional elements.

10. Disturbed circulation.

Prolonged Deficiency Cause of Ill

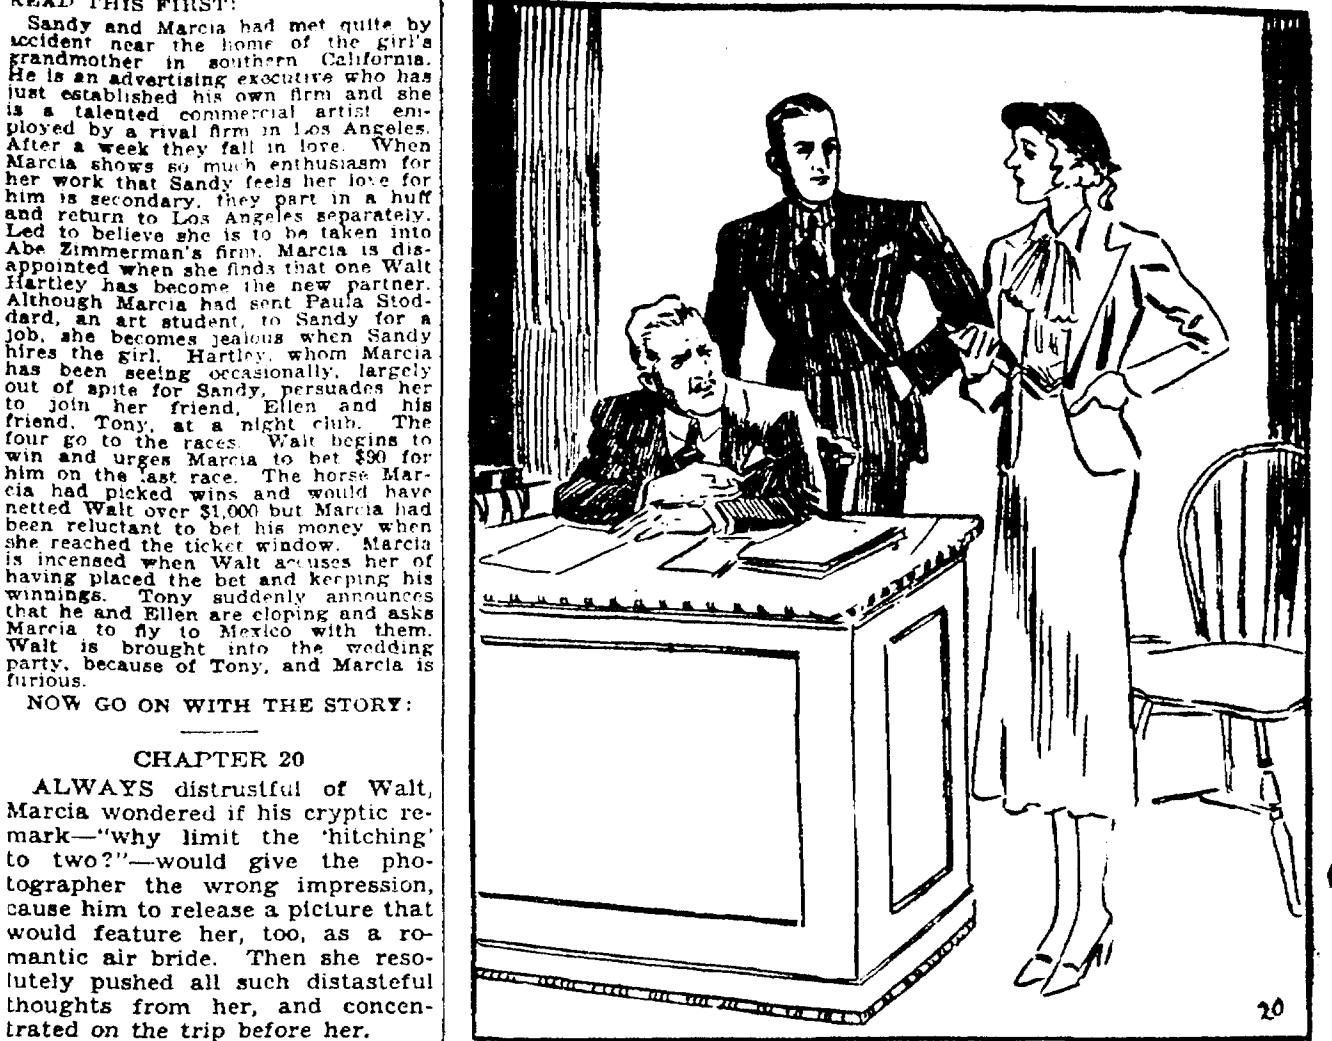

The vitamins have made one or two additions to them. It should be remembered that it is only where there is prolonged deficiency that they result in actual disease.

There may be early stages which are not at all clear-cut. Thus Vitamin A is necessary for the integrity of epithelial tissue. While prolonged deficiency may cause inflammation of the eye, the formation of kidney stones, and night blindness, in the early stage there may be just simply some defects of the epithelium of the mouth, nose or throat.

Love is for Tomorrow

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

"So you want to quit, is it?"

many of them giving her a direct view into their musty interiors.

"Look at the signs, MARRIAGES—and right under it, DIVORCES. Do they do as good a business untying knots as they do in marrying people?" Marcia whispered to Walt, not wishing to inject any such thoughts into Ellen's happy day. On numerous little offices she saw these signs, put out by some ambitious justice or minister eager to get the fees of wealthy Americans.

"Sure, they don't believe in letting their right hand know what their left hand is doing," Walt grinned derisively. "Today's amorous couple may just mean more business for them a little later, when they decide to be rid of an unwelcome partner."

Marcia shivered, reluctant to admit how easy divorce was being made. No wonder young girls rushed into it headlong, without asking or taking time to consider. If it was a mistake—piff! There were always easy ways out.

Marcia marriage was a sacred thing, to be taken seriously and abided by for all time. There had been a reason underlying her refusal to marry Sandy until all difficulties had been straightened out; she wanted to be sure that their marriage would last.

The rickety taxi had brought them from the airport, stopped with a jerk before an official-looking building, only slightly less musty than those they had passed. In a minute they were standing before a bored and slightly stooped old man who had the license ready almost the minute he glimpsed them hurrying down the hall.

Looking at him, Marcia could anticipate his words: "Now-I pronounce - you - man - and - wife - $2.00 please." In a few solemn minutes the lives of Ellen and Tony were joined together, and after receiving congratulations, they dashed headlong into the street.

Walt guided the little party expertly to one of the corner bars, and gaily ordered champagne to celebrate the occasion. The wedding luncheon in one of the nicer cafes was a gay one, and about 3 o'clock Ellen and Tony were ready to leave.

"We've hired a car to drive us to Ensenada," Tony told Marcia, "so you two better hop the plane and get back to town before it gets too late."

Marcia had not heard these details of the wedding plans, taking it for granted that the newlyweds would fly back with them. "We're going to stay until Monday or Tuesday, then take the train home," Ellen confided with new shyness, and Marcia reluctantly agreed that it would be an anticlimax to go back to town when they had an opportunity to start their life together in the beautiful, romantic setting of Ensenada.

Marcia had felt Tia Juana was in-adequate for the occasion, and was glad for Ellen that Tony had planned something special. The wide beach at Ensenada, with the moon shining gloriously down on the lavish hotel—a logical honeymoon spot.

After speeding the departing pair, Walt took Marcia back to the airport. There he proposed a toast with a bottle of fine Scotch which he had bought in Mexico and had in his coat. Marcia took a long look at Walt and said, "All right. Let's drink to our last outing together."

"Haven't you forgotten all our misunderstandings, Marcia? You ought to be big enough to forgive."

"That's not the point. I just disapprove of you thoroughly, personally and in a business way, and I see no reason to subject ourselves to more unpleasant times together. I haven't told you, but I'm resigning from Acme Monday. I only came today for Ellen's sake, not because I was anxious for your company," she said candidly.

Marcia slept most of the way back, and was relieved when Walt put her in a cab instead of accompanying her home. He was in a look at Walt and said, "All right. Let's drink to our last outing together."

Sunday was a lazy day, spent mostly in rest and contemplation of the break she planned to make the next day.

On Monday Marcia approached the office with some trepidation for, despite her decision to leave, she had a definite affection for old Abe, and she was glad to be rid of him.

Early as she was in arriving, she soon found that Walt had heat her downtown and already had won Abe's ear. Instead of explaining the situation in her own way to Abe, she found him ready for her when she walked into his office.

"So you want to quit, is it? We're not good enough for you now, with all the raises and fine things we've done for you?" he greeted her, and he sounded hurt. Marcia tried valiantly to explain her feelings in the matter, but Abe called Walt to his side saying, "As a partner, you should hear this, Hartley. Have you anything to say?"

Walt looked at Marcia maliciously. "If the lady wants to call it quits, I'd say good riddance."

"But Hartley, Marcia's done a lot around here; I hate to let her go without an argument. Just because she don't see like we do—Abe was sincerely trying to do his best by Marcia, realizing rather belatedly that he owed her a lot for the long months of pioneering."

"Yes, I'd say she has done quite a lot around here," Walt drawled. "I didn't tell you that she literally took a thousand dollars out of my pockets, did I Abe?"

In the afternoon to the Chillicothe Horse Show as guests of the Col. Thatchers, remaining over for the evening performance. Saw Paul Adkins ride in one class as Lady Adkins looked on. She planned competition, but one of her mounts developed a malady. In the throng did see Bob Musser, Fred Clark, Mayor Graham and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Eveland, Mrs. George Crites and Mrs. L. C. Athey. Heard the Circleville Pumpkin Show receive a nice hand as the announcer called attention to the big annual event and its horse show feature. Likewise heard many of the exhibitors express intent to participate.

EMPLOYERS MUST SIGN

WASHINGTON — The National Labor Relations Board will shortly issue two of the most momentous rulings in its turbulent history. Both will directly affect, though have no immediate connection with, the current C.I.O. struggle with the independent steel companies.

The Board's decrees will:

1. Require employers not only to bargain collectively with their workers but to enter into agreements with them.

2. Hold that minority groups of workers cannot ask for separate agreements but must abide by the terms negotiated by the majority union.

Both rulings will go squarely to the heart of the present wave of strikes. They will also tackle issues which the Board so far has cautiously side-stepped.

Since the days of the famed Section 7A of the NRA, unions have complained that certain employers were evading compliance with the law by going through the motions of bargaining with them but refusing to sign contracts, and by secretly instigating minority unions which demand separate agreements. Weighted down with injunctions, the Board ducked a showdown on these issues until the Supreme Court had passed on the validity of the collective bargaining act.

DOUBLE-MEANING

The Court's recent decision, while upholding the law, did not conclusively settle the question of the compulsion on employers to sign contracts.

In his majority opinion, Chief Justice Hughes declared, "... the act does not compel agreements between employers and employees..." The Labor Board and certain employer elements differ sharply on the exact meaning of this language.

Employers interpret it to mean that as long as they allow their workers to organize and negotiate with them, they have complied with the letter of the law. They claim they do not have to sign contracts. The Board asserts such an interpretation makes a sham and mockery of the law.

It holds that Hughes did not intend to give employers a loophole to avoid entering into agreements with unions, but was enjoining the Board from prescribing the terms on which they had to get together.

SECRET CONSPIRACY

The dispute is not an academic one. The Board is convinced that this is the nub of most of the labor-employer battling now raging in many sections of the country.

It has confidential information that several weeks ago two national industrial organizations, after careful study of Hughes' decision, secretly advised their members to bargain with their union workers but to refuse to sign any agreements. By this stratagem, they counseled, employers could stay within the law and at the same time combat the unionization of their plants.

To force this undercover attack into the open and bring a showdown on its powers, the Board has decided to kill two birds with one stone

1. Exclude minority unions from the operation of the Wagner Act;

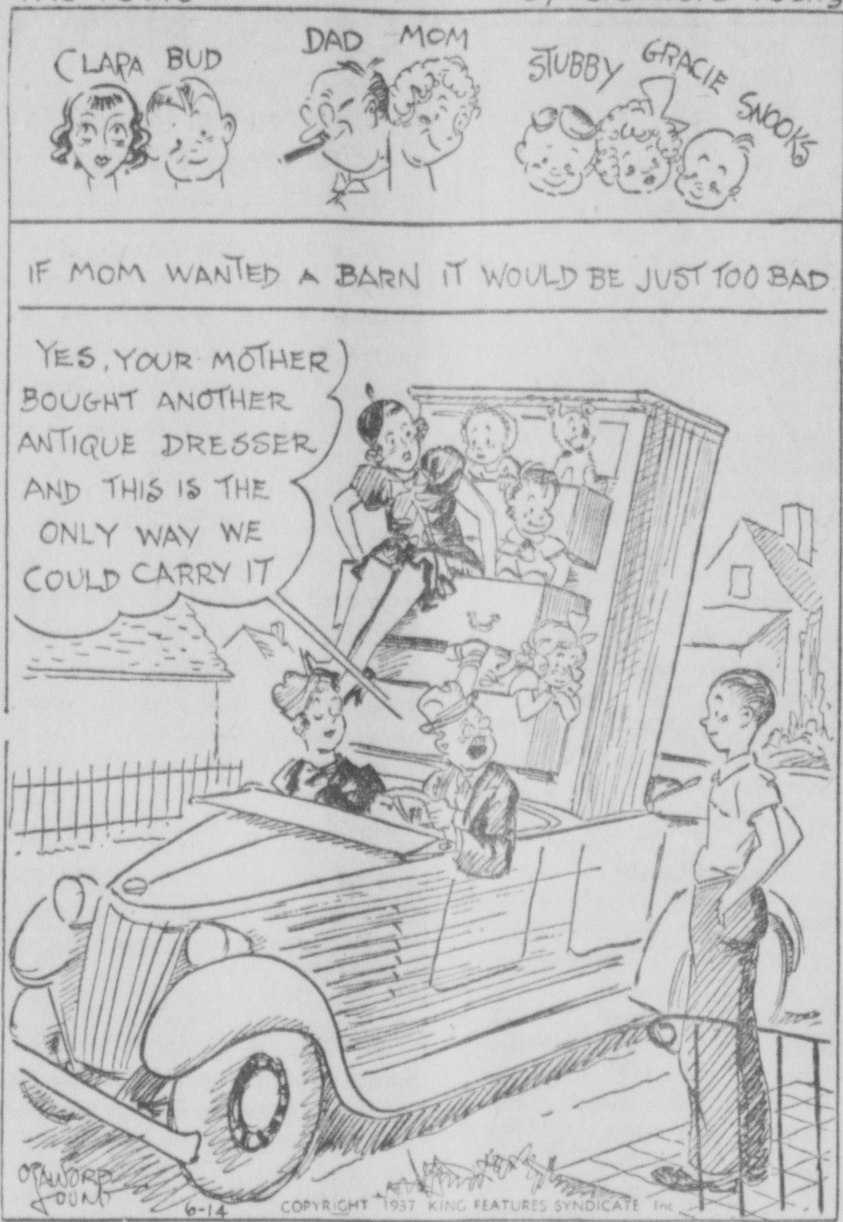

2. Lay down the flat injunction on employers that they must sign contracts after collective bargaining or be subject to prosecution for violation of the law.

"A nation," says Roger Babson, "is no better than the people who are in it." True and also trite.

DIET AND HEALTH

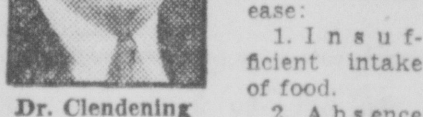

Causes for Nutritional Deficiency Cited

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YOU MAY HAVE enough vitamins in your diet, as we said yesterday, but your body may not be able to absorb them.

In a recent review of the subject, a Cleveland doctor has listed the following intrinsic body causes for nutritional deficiency disease:

1. Insufficient intake of food.
2. Absence of some digestive factor necessary for the formation of a specific nutritional element for food (as the intrinsic factor lacking in pernicious anemia).
3. Excessive loss of gastrointestinal contents by diarrhea or vomiting.
4. Increased need, as in pregnancy and lactation or states of overactive nutrition from thyroid activity.
5. Presence of any toxic state impairing absorption and utilization, such as cancer or poisons from kidney insufficiency, or infection.
6. Anemia in which there is a deficient interchange between oxygen and food tissues.
7. Lack of stomach juice which affects the absorption or production of specific factors from food.
8. Lowered metabolism in which

Dr. Clendening

the tissues are working at an abnormally low speed.

9. Impaired glucose tolerance which seems to increase the need or impair the use of at least some of the nutritional elements.
10. Disturbed circulation.

Prolonged Deficiency Cause of Ill The vitamins have made one or two additions to them. It should be remembered that it is only where there is prolonged deficiency that they result in actual disease. There may be early stages which are not at all clear-cut. Thus Vitamin A is necessary for the integrity of epithelial tissue. While prolonged deficiency may cause inflammation of the eye, the formation of kidney stones, and night blindness, in the early stage there may be just simply some defects of the epithelium of the mouth, nose or throat.

Vitamin B, if deficient for a long time, causes paralysis from neuritis, but a partial deficiency may cause simply loss of appetite and slight dropsy.

Our ancestors, in the spring used to have what they called "black-leg", which consisted in small hemorrhages beneath the skin. This is a minor sign of what would later be scurvy, and was caused by the long winter deprivation of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Deficiency of Vitamin D in a late stage will cause rickets, but before rickets appears there may be some decay of the teeth and softening of the bone.

The anti-anemia factor is now included among the vitamins. Although it is manufactured by the body itself and need not be deliberately added to the food.

Love is for Tomorrow

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST: Sandy and Marcia had met quite by accident near the home of the girl's grandmother in southern California. He is an advertising executive who has established his own firm and she is a talented commercial artist employed by a rival firm in Los Angeles. After a week they fall in love. When Marcia shows so much enthusiasm for her work that Sandy feels her love for him is secondary, they part in a huff and return to Los Angeles separately. Led to believe she is to be taken into Abe Zimmermann's firm, Marcia is disappointed when she finds that one Walt Hartley has become her new partner. Although Marcia had sent Paula Stoddard, an art student, to Sandy for a job, she becomes jealous when Sandy hires the girl. Hartley, whom Marcia has been seeing occasionally, largely out of spite for Sandy, persuades her to join her friend, Ellen, and his friend, Tony, at a night club. The four go to the races. Walt begins to win and urges Marcia to bet $50 for him on the last race. The horse Marcia had picked wins and would have netted Walt over $1,000 but Marcia had been reluctant to bet his money when she placed the ticket. Marcia is incensed when Walt accuses her of having played the bet and keeping his winnings. Tony suddenly announces he and Ellen are eloping and asks Marcia to fly to Mexico with them. Walt is brought into the wedding party because of Tony, and Marcia is furious.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 20

ALWAYS distrustful of Walt, Marcia wondered if his cryptic remark—"why limit the 'hitching' to two?"—would give the photographer the wrong impression, cause him to release a picture, that would feature her, too, as a romantic air bride. Then she resolutely pushed all such distasteful thoughts from her, and concentrated on the trip before her.

She admitted slight fear of air travel, and her stomach felt rather unsettled with the big plane sweeping alarmingly skyward, but when it hit a steady course she experienced a keen feeling of delight. The freedom and speed of their progress thrilled her, and with an artist's appreciation she looked through "holes" in the clouds at the square patches that were houses and farms, orchards and cities.

Ellen seemed blissfully unconcerned of her whereabouts and was sitting with Tony's arm about her shoulders. Marcia thought she caught a slight smirk on the face of the pilot, who had played the role of Cupid on so many similar occasions. She remembered the wild expose the papers had been making of the various "Gretna Greens" near Los Angeles, and thought she understood his attitude.

Yuma, she'd read, did a flourishing and competitive business among enamored couples who wanted to get married sooner than California's three-day laws would allow. According to reports, they literally met every plane at the airport, and the hotel help and even the barbers had their favorites among the marrying parsons, and exacted gratuities for sending them remunerative business. Probably that was one reason why Tony decided to go to Mexico, besides realizing that Ellen would thrill at the experience of going across the national boundary line.

Marcia thought she'd rather be married in her own home or in a church, with her family and friends gathered around her. They reached their hotel within a few hours, and Marcia reluctantly prepared to get back to earth. Up in the clouds she had felt relieved of all responsibility, free to plan her life as she'd like to have it. The persistent throb of the motors had made it almost impossible to carry on a regular conversation, for which she was grateful.

As they disembarked, they were questioned by swarthy-skinned officials as to their nationality, and purpose in coming to Mexico. Even Marcia felt excited at the novel experience of leaving her native land, although she could look at the rolling hills to the northward and realize that there was American soil. Even the houses and the rather barren fields had a foreign look.

Tia Juana was a typical border town, gathering to itself a rough element of drifters from both nations. With the abolition of gamblers it had settled into a discouraged slump, to be only slightly revived when the Casino was reopened on trial. Down the winding dirty streets, where little stores and bars crowded one another, Marcia gazed with genuine interest. Perfume, liquor and novelty shops seemed in the majority, with the open fronts of adequate for the occasion, and was glad for Ellen that Tony had planned something special. The wide beach at Ensenada, with the moon shining gloriously down on the lavish hotel—a logical honeymoon spot.

After speeding the departing pair, Walt took Marcia back to the airport. There he proposed a toast with a bottle of fine Scotch which he had bought in Mexico and had in his coat. Marcia took a long look at Walt and said, "All right. Let's drink to our last outing together!"

"Haven't you forgotten all our misunderstandings, Marcia? You ought to be big enough to forgive—"

"That's not the point. I just disapprove of you thoroughly, personally and in a business way, and I see no reason to subject ourselves to more unpleasant times together. I haven't told you, but I'm resigning from Acme Monday. I only came today for Ellen's sake, not because I was anxious for your company," she said candidly.

Marcia slept most of the way back, and was relieved when Walt put her in a cab instead of accompanying her home. He was in a surly mood, and she was glad to be rid of him.

Sunday was a lazy day, spent mostly in rest and contemplation of the break she planned to make the next day.

On Monday Marcia approached the office with some trepidation for, despite her decision to leave, she had a definite affection for old Abe, scoundrel though she now regarded him.

Early as she was in arriving, she soon found that Walt had beat her downtown and already had won Abe's ear. Instead of explaining the situation in her own way to Abe, she found him ready for her when she walked into his office.

"So you want to quit, is it? We're not good enough for you now, with all the raises and fine things we've done for you?" he greeted her, and he sounded hurt. Marcia tried valiantly to explain her feelings in the matter, but Abe called Walt to his side saying, "As a partner, you should hear this, Hartley. Have you anything to say?"

Walt looked at Marcia maliciously.

"If the lady wants to call it quits, I'd say good riddance."

"But Hartley, Marcia's done a lot around here; I hate to let her go without an argument. Just because she don't see like we do—" Abe was sincerely trying to do his best by Marcia, realizing rather belatedly that he owed her a lot for the long months of pioneering.

STYLE WHIMISIES

For generations the bride's wedding gloves, as well as her dress veil and slippers, have been cherished and carefully tucked away with the "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue."

If the bridal gown sleeves are anywhere from three-quarter length to the shoulder, gloves must be worn. Very long ones meet very short sleeves in the modern bridal dress. Since the ring must go on the clearest way of freeing the finger without damaging the glove is to open the seam and tuck the glove finger inside. After the wedding you can have the seam sewed up again at the store from which you bought the gloves. Ivory white lace is the rule for wedding gloves, and splurge on this item, you brides. Buy the finest pair you can find, as they are something you will always keep.

For her attendants, gloves in color add a great deal of chic to the picture, the modern bride finds. The color of the gloves may be taken from the bouquets the girls carry, or from their corsages. Or they may match ribbons or trimmings on hats, their jewelry, or any other thing that the bride's ingenuity can conjure.

A linen shoe with circles of multicolored suede scattered like confetti over it is one of the novelties of the summer.

Gaily embroidered cotton blouses with matching, open-crowned turbans make summer suits look gay. A model in yellow shantung with red flowers is particularly attractive.

For beach clothes men's wear, flat twist, ticking, denim, novelty sharkskin, crepe satin and woolens are being used.

STYLE WHIMISIES

For generations the bride's wedding gloves, as well as her dress, veil and slippers, have been cherished and carefully tucked away with the "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue."

If the bridal gown sleeves are anywhere from three-quarter length to the shoulder, gloves should be worn. Very long ones meet very short sleeves in the modern bridal dress. Since the ring must go on, the cleverest way of freeing the finger without damaging the glove is to open the seam and tuck the glove finger inside. After the wedding you can have the seam sewed up again at the store from which you bought the gloves. Ivory white lace kid is the rule for wedding gloves, and splurge on this item, you brides. Buy the finest pair you can find, as they are something you will always keep.

the picture, the modern bride finds. The color of the gloves may be taken from the bouquets the girls carry, or from their corsages. Or they may match ribbons or trimmings on hats, their jewelry, or any other thing that the bride's ingenuity can conjure.

A linen shoe with circles of multicolored suede scattered like confetti over it is one of the novelties of the summer.

Gaily embroidered cotton blouses with matching, open-crowned turbans make summer suits look gay. A model in yellow shantung with red flowers is particularly attractive.

For beach clothes men's wear, flat twist, ticking, denim, novelty sharkskin, crepe satin and wools are being used.

BY UNITED PRESS

Cincinnati and Cleveland, Ohio's major league ball clubs, were playing exhibitions Monday in preparation for resumption of their schedules, Tuesday.

Before opening a series with the league-leading Yankees at New York on Tuesday, the Indians today were to play Cornell university at Ithaca, N. Y.

Ordinarily an exhibition game with a college team would not stir up much interest but today's game was different because Bob Feller, Cleveland's young strike-out artist who has pitched to only one batter since April 24, was scheduled to start the game against the collegians.

Feller's showing may indicate whether his ailing arm is repaired, as Feller believes.

Fourth Place Held

Cleveland remained in fourth place today after winning a double-header from Philadelphia here Sunday, 2 to 1 and 2 to 0. The double triumph enabled the Tribe to gain a little on the Yanks and Tigers but not on the Chicago White Sox, who also won a pair.

First-rate pitching by Johnny Allen and Earl Whitehill was largely responsible for beating the Athletics twice. Some timely hitting in each game clinched the argument.

The Reds were to participate in an inter-league double header in Charleston, W. Va., for the benefit of a hospital fund. The Reds were to play the Philadelphia Athletics in one game and the Washington Senators were to meet the Philadelphia Nationals in the other.

The Reds ended their eastern invasion at New York Sunday by getting an even break in a double header with the league-leading Giants. The Reds won the first 5 to 1, and the Giants took the second 6 to 2.

Cincinnati got an even break in the 12 games played in the east.

The Reds did some plain and fancy home run belting in the pair of games with the Giants. Alex Kampouris, Cincinnati's second baseman, took the league leadership when he hit one homer in each game to raise his season's total to 12.

Thump Eastern Teams

NEW YORK, June 14—(UP)—American league clubs of the east returned home today after absorbing the worst interseasonal trouncing of the year.

Not one eastern team of the junior circuit got an even break. The westerners were triumphant in 30 of the 45 contests played.

Open Titlist

RALPH GULDAHL, big Chicago golfer scored a record 281, Saturday, to win the National Open golf championship on the Oakland Hills course, Birmingham, Mich. Guldahl defeated Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, Va., for the total, Snead tallying 283.

In the first game and Chick Hefey hit one in the second contest. Pitcher Ray Davis limited the Giants to four hits in the first game.

Although Paul Derringer pitched to only two batters in the second game he was charged with the loss, his fifth of the season.

LISTON WINNER OF GOLF CLUB'S
SUNDAY MATCH

Willis Liston won the "Bet-a-Million" golf tournament held at the Pickaway Country club, Sunday, with Elmer Reger in second place. Liston finished with $34,200 in his possession, while Reger had $30,000.

Starting Wednesday, a twilight league featuring best-ball and two-ball foursomes will be staged. Willis Dickerson, club pro, is working out many tournaments to be run the remainder of the season.

A night exhibition, starting at 9 o'clock, by use of phosphorous golf balls, is planned in the next two weeks.

If you must gamble, don't do it with strangers or persons of short acquaintance. Cards are marked, dice are loaded, wheels are magnetized, and the odds are stacked up against you.

McCoy, Brown To Meet
BOSTON, June 14—(UP)—New England heavyweight champion Al McCoy of Dorchester and Natie Brown of Washington, D. C., one of the few men to stay 10 rounds with Joe Louis, clash at Fenway park tonight in a battle that will go 10 rounds or less.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Joe Dimaggio, who hit three home runs in the second game of a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns, driving in five runs and keeping the Yankees in undisputed possession of the American league lead.

CLEVELAND (UP)—Mrs. Margaret Beck, 31, recently was graduated from an elementary school to which she had been going in order to keep educational pace with her 11-year-old son. She had received a "jumbled education" in Switzerland before leaving there at the age of 17.

Guldahl as Braddock

Careers of two titlists run almost parallel—In mind are the heavyweight boxing championship of Jimmy Braddock and the National Open golf toga gained by Ralph Guldahl, Chicago, professional at Birmingham, Mich., Saturday. Guldahl didn't sink quite so low as did Braddock before attaining honors. The Jersey City fighter was on relief, and in destitute circumstances for quite a while before he came out of it—Guldahl was so far down that his clubs were in 'hock', and even the only livelihood he knew, golfing, was closed to him for quite a while—His championship is as popular as was Braddock's when the Joiseyite bumped off Smackie Maxie Baer * * * Guldahl came up from the ranks of a caddy in much the same manner as did Gene Sarazen and other famous shotmakers * * * Ha: word has finally arrived from the Hessel, Mich. camp of Coach Jack Landrum and his boys—They've been gone a week now and the only info the janitor has been able to pass on is that all arrived safely—Now comes a card from Landrum: "Have eight nice cabins, 15 boats, 12 motors and a very good cook (Lloyd Weaver). Fished today (Friday) and caught about 150 perch. Too cold for pike yet. Rooney and Weldon going good at the meal table with Schumm running third. No sickness. CINCINNATI, CLEVELAND PLAY EXHIBITIONS ON MONDAY'S OFF-DAY

INDIANS TO USE FELLER IN TEST OF HURLING ARM

Ithaca, N. Y. Scene of Tilt For O'Neill-men; Reds Go to Charleston

RIGGS HITS HOMERS

Dressen Athletes Break Even With Giants

BY UNITED PRESS Cincinnati and Cleveland, Ohio's major league ball clubs, were playing exhibitions Monday in preparation for resumption of their schedules, Tuesday.

Before opening a series with the league-leading Yanks at New York on Tuesday, the Indians today were to play Cornell university at Ithaca, N. Y.

Ordinarily an exhibition game with a college team would not stir up much interest but today's game was different because Bob Feller, Cleveland's young strike-out artist who has pitched to only one batter since April 24, was scheduled to start the game against the collegians.

Feller's showing may indicate whether his ailing arm is repaired, as Feller believes.

Fourth Place Held

Cleveland remained in fourth place today after winning a double-header from Philadelphia here Sunday, 2 to 1 and 2 to 0. The double triumph enabled the Tribe to gain a little on the Yanks and Tigers but not on the Chicago White Sox, who also won a pair.

First-rate pitching by Johnny Allen and Earl Whitehill was largely responsible for beating the Athletics twice. Some timely hitting in each game clinched the argument.

The Reds were to participate in an inter-league double header in Charleston, W. Va., for the benefit of a hospital fund. The Reds were to play the Philadelphia Athletics in one game and the Washington Senators were to meet the Philadelphia Nationals in the other.

The Reds ended their eastern invasion at New York Sunday by getting an even break in a double header with the league-leading Giants. The Reds won the first 5 to 1, and the Giants took the second 6 to 2.

Cincinnati got an even break in the 12 games played in the east.

The Reds did some plain and fancy home run belting in the pair of games with the Giants. Alex Kampouris, Cincinnati second baseman, took the league leadership when he hit one homer in each game to raise his season's total to 12.

Western Clubs of A. L. Thump Eastern Teams

NEW YORK, June 14—(UP)—American league clubs of the east returned home today after absorbing the worst inter-sectional trouncing of the year.

Not one eastern team of the junior circuit got an even break. The westerners were triumphant in 30 of the 45 contests played.

Open Titlist

RALPH GULDAHL, big Chicago golfer scored a record 281, Saturday, to win the National Open golf championship on the Oakland Hills course, Birmingham, Mich. Guldahl defeated Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, Va., for the total, Snead tallying 283.

In the first game and Chick Hafey hit one in the second contest.

Pitcher Ray Davis limited the Giants to four hits in the first game.

Although Paul Derringer pitched to only two batters in the second game he was charged with the loss, his fifth of the season.

LISTON WINNER OF GOLF CLUB'S SUNDAY MATCH

Willis Liston won the "Bet-a-Million" golf tournament held at the Pickaway Country club, Sunday, with Elmer Reger in second place. Liston finished with $34,200 in his possession, while Reger had $30,000.

Starting Wednesday, a twilight league, featuring best-ball and two-ball four-somes will be staged. Willis Dickerson, club pro, is working out many tournaments to be run the remainder of the season.

A night exhibition, starting at 9 o'clock, by use of phosphorus golf balls, is planned in the next two weeks.

Henn's Hitting Provides Second Game Margin

The 136th Battery Co. softball team, augmented by stars from several other league teams, won two fast games from the Whittier Merchants, Columbus, Sunday on the electric field.

Scores of the contests were: Battery Co., 2, Whittier Merchants, 1; Battery Co., 3, Whittier Merchants, 2.

Two runs in the fifth inning of the first game won that fray for the army lads, while Doc Ferguson gave up only four hits. An infield error on Bowsher's grounder, L. Davis's single, and Whaley's single provided the Battery company runs.

In the second game, Lloyd Leasure was in form, allowing only four singles to the invaders. An error and two hits, by M. Davis and Henn, accounted for two of the runs in the second session, while hits by Teets and Henn and Bowsher's fly tallied the other.

Lineups included: 136th Battery: Whaley, cf; Smalley, cf; Trimmer, lb; Brungs, 2b; M. Davis, ss; Robinson, c; Henn, rf; Bowsher, lf; Davis, 3b; Ferguson, p. In the second game the only changes were Teets catching and Leasure pitching. Whittier Merchants: N. Zierhut, cf; B. Frech, cf; F. Wippel, ss; W. Green, rf; E. McCloskey, lb; F. Miller, 3b; K. MONEY CHARTED FOR PHILIPPINES

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—America's financial investment in the Philippines now totals approximately $200,000,000, according to a survey by the Institute of Pacific Relations.

The figure is somewhat below that of $258,000,000 which was prepared by the Bureau of Insular Affairs in 1932 and which has since been currently used in discussions relative to America's interests in the islands.

The present figure, the institute said, is one that has considerable importance in view of the negotiations now under way for establishing the future status between the United States and the Philippines.

The institute found that American investments in the Philippines were far below British investments in the Malay peninsula, or the Dutch stake in the East Indies. In addition, they constituted less than 2 percent of the total of American investments abroad, according to the institute. They are also just about on a par with American investments in China and Japan, when allowance is made for heavy repurchases by Japanese investors of Japanese bonds issued in the United States.

Comparable to China

In general character, the institute found, the American investments in the Philippines are about the same as those in China. The total in each country is made up largely of direct investments in business enterprises, many of which are owned by resident Americans. In both countries, too, a large part is directly or indirectly associated with American trade.

The institute found that in recent years there have been at least two important shifts in the character of American investments in the Philippines.

The first has been a reduction in the par value of government bonds held by Americans. In 1930 this totaled $65,000,000. By 1931 the outstanding indebtedness of the Commonwealth had been reduced to $48,700,000, of which only $31,100,000 was held by Americans.

The second noteworthy change, the institute said, is the increasing investment in Philippine mining enterprises. Such investments at present are estimated at $37,900,000.

The sudden development of the mining industry in the Philippines has been found due to the increased price for gold, although iron and chromium are other im-

CONTRACT BRIDGE

SHOWING SUIT LENGTHS

WHEN PLAYERS are using a suit overall of one more than necessary to imply a one-time force upon your partner, his choice of response should be based upon the number of cards in his suits rather than upon the honors in them. As in the case of an informative double, the one putting on the force says in effect: "I will furnish the high cards and you furnish merely the suit lengths."

4-Spades, and made seven. Where North's response to the 3-Clubs was 3-Spades, there was no difficulty in reaching the spade slam. Those who showed the hearts first and then assisted spades figured their hearts were stronger and therefore should be shown first. What South was really looking for was length rather than high cards, as with an opening bid and his own holdings he hardly expected any great honor strength in his partner's hand.

Those who passed the 4-Spades bid could hardly be criticized, as they were afraid there might be a club loser or two.

EXTENSION AGENT TELLS FARMERS ABOUT METHOD TO KILL ARMY WORMS

TWO TOWNSHIPS REPORT SCOURGE NOW IN FIELD

Advise of State Expert Sought By F. K. Blair For Pickaway Area

TREATMENT DISCUSSED

Field of Barley Damaged in Greene County

Army worms, known and dreaded by many Pickaway county farmers for the serious damage they cause to crops, have made their appearance in Darby and Jackson townships, F. K. Blair, county agent, reported Monday. On receiving the report of the worms, Mr. Blair asked T. H. Parks, extension entomologist of Ohio State university, for information for control of the pests. Parks informed the extension agent the free call for help in controlling the worms was received from Greene county, where a field of barley had been injured and had furnished food for millions of the worms that are now migrating to wheat.

To Feed on Grass "We do not think the worms will injure the wheat seriously," Parks said, "as they will feed mostly on the grass in the wheat field. The lower leaves will be stripped from the stems. Where corn joins an infested barley, rye, or wheat field from which army worms are migrating, they may destroy several acres per day.

"Army worms do most of their feeding at night, and the scattering of poisoned bait should be done between 4 p. m. and darkness. The following formula for poisoned bran is very effective against army worms: wheat bran, 20 pounds; Paris green, 1 pound; cheap molasses, two quarts, and water, two and a half gallons.

"Thoroughly mix dry the poison and the bran with a hoe in a tub, or large box. Dissolve the molasses in the water. Pour the sweetened water over the poisoned bran and mix thoroughly with a hoe. Add additional water as necessary to moisten all particles of the bran. When properly moistened, the mixture holds loosely together when pressed in the hands, but is not water-soaked. In that condition it scatters thinly and evenly.

One Application Needed "The above quantity should cover three to three and a half acres of land, if scattered thinly and evenly. When the bran mash is applied thoroughly, one application is usually all that is necessary to give control. Where it is not economical to apply on large acreages, the borders of the field can be treated with a band of bait several rods wide, across which worms would have to move in order to reach corn. Keep this baited constantly. If the worms are already in the corn, scatter the bait thinly as far as they have progressed.

"The above method is quite effective and dead army worms will be found in abundance within 20 hours after the bait is applied. "Where one desires to use a dusty furrow, this will temporarily delay the worms, while poisoned bran mash is secured. Plow a deep furrow and make the sides steep and dusty. It is then possible to kill many worms easily by scattering the bait in the bottom of the furrow. If the soil is wet an effective dust barrier cannot be made."

HARRIS, 52, ARRESTED ON R. B. PENN CHARGES

Lewis, United Mine Workers president and C.I.O. head, bitterly denounced Tom Girdler, Republic chairman, in a statement. The National Labor Relations board ordered a hearing in Chicago on a union complaint that Inland Steel company refused to sign a union contract.

MONROE, MICH.—Mayor Daniel Knaggs said Monroe citizens would "rise as one man" to protect the city against strike violence. With national guardsmen withdrawn after a huge union mass meeting yesterday, hundreds of deputized citizens prepared to meet the promised return of C.I.O. pickets to the Newton steel plant, reopened under guard last week.

ASHLAND, O.—Five airplanes took off at intervals from Republic's new airbase here, carrying food and bedding to non-striking steel workers in plants at Niles and Warren.

JOHNSTOWN, PA.—Coal miners went on strike in captive mines and joined picket lines around the Bethlehem Steel Corporation plant. Union and company claims differed as to effectiveness of the Bethlehem strike. Company officials said all departments of the plant were in operation.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—Threat of a general strike in Youngstown was dispelled when the United Labor Congress, Central Labor Union, met but did not discuss the question. The congress condemned the activities of city and county authorities during the strike, which affects four Republic plants here, three of which are shut down.

CANTON, O.—The executive committees of 50 unions affiliated with the Canton Federation of Labor voted unanimously to call a general strike if a newly-formed Citizens League attempts to aid plants to reopen.

COLUMBUS, O.—Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio planned to confer again tomorrow with steel company officials and union leaders in an attempt to negotiate a settlement of the strike. A previous conference failed.

WARREN, O.—A court hearing was scheduled today on an application for an injunction to prevent picketing.

ANDERSON, IND.—Police rounded up principals of a Sunday riot in which nine men, non-union members, were struck by shotgun pellets allegedly fired from headquarters of the United Automobile Workers union.

DETROIT—The Workers Council for Social Justice, a new union incorporating principles of Father Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice, began attempts to organize 90,000 workers of the Ford Motor company.

LIBBY HOLMAN ANGERED BY JACK DOYLE'S REPORT

NEW YORK, June 14—(UP)—Libby Holman gave Jack Doyle a verbal lacing as rough as any the baritone boxer has received from the fists of his prize-ring adversaries when the French liner Normandie steamed into port today.

The torch song singer could scarcely wait until newspapermen had asked her about rumors, reputedly started by Doyle, that they were engaged.

"Absolutely no," she snapped. "I was furious when I heard about that report. It was a cheap publicity trick of an opportunist and I loathe being the victim of it."

But most emphatically, the committee majority insisted that the issue tossed into congress last February by the president must be met and rejected in a manner that would protect an independent judiciary as long "as this government stands."

"This (bill) amounts to nothing more than the declaration that when the court stands in the way of a legislative enactment, the congress may reverse the ruling by enlarging the court," the majority report said.

Not Constituted

"It applies force to the judiciary. It is an attempt to impose on the courts a course of action, a line of decision which, without that force, without that imposition, the judiciary might not adopt... constitutionally, the bill can have no sanction.

"No amount of sophistry can cover up this fact... this is the first time in the history of our country that (such) a proposal has been so boldly made.

"Let us, the seventy-fifth congress, in words that will never be disregarded by any such succeeding congress, declare that we would have an independent court, a fearless court, a court that will dare to announce its honest opinions in what it believes to be the defense of the liberties of the people, than a court that, out of fear or sense of obligation to the appointing power, or factional passion, approves any measure we may enact.

"We are not judges of the judges. We are not above the Constitution."

The majority of the committee, approving the report, was: William H. King, D., Utah; Frederick Van Nuys, D., Ind.; Pac McCarran, D., Nev.; Edward R. Burke, D., Neb.; Tom Connally, D., Texas; Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo.; William E. Borah, R., Ida.; Warren R. Austin, R., Vt.; Frederick Steiwer, R., Ore.; and Carl A. Hatch, D., N. M.; who reserved the right to vote for a compromise proposal he originated.

Members of the committee not signing the majority report were: Chairman Henry F. Ashurst, Ariz.; Matthew M. Neely, D., W. Va.; M. M. Logan, D., Ky.; George McGill, D., Kan.; Key Pittman, D., Nev.; James H. Hughes, D., Del.; George W. Norris, Ind., Neb.

Whether a minority report will be submitted was still undetermined.

The submission of the majority report puts the court bill on the senate calendar. It is subject to call during the regular calendar days at which time a single objection would prevent consideration. It is subject to call as the pending order of business on a majority vote. That action may be taken within 10 days or two weeks.

ALBAUGH CHAPEL ARRANGES ORGAN RECITAL TUESDAY

Circleville organists and music-lovers are displaying keen interest in the newest development of the music world, the Hammond Electric organ, installed at W. H. Albaugh Company. Local organists who have played this new pipeless, electric instrument are enthusiastic in their praise of its beautiful tone quality and its wide range of tone colors.

A recital, to which the public is invited, will be held at the Albaugh chapel on Tuesday, April 15, from 3 to 9 p. m. Although the Hammond Electric Organ was introduced only a year and half ago, more than 800 have already been installed by churches, and an equal number by schools, colleges, private owners and mortuaries.

The pipe organ has been called the "King of Instruments" because of the great variety and majesty of tone-color combinations which it brought under the command of one performer. Its grandeur, however, was accomplished by an imposing array of myriad pipes controlled by an equally intricate system of stop-keys, couplers and pistons, all supplied by a powerful wind-pressure system. The design of a fine pipe organ was a matter for highly experienced tonal architects with consideration for the acoustical demands of the auditorium to be filled with music, and the funds available.

It is almost beyond belief that this vast musical structure is now condensed into a portable electric console the size of a spinet desk, which by means of a few simple "harmonic-keys" affords 253,000,000 variations of tone color and tone combinations. The instrument is operated by a synchronous electric motor and consequently is permanently in tune and always at proper pitch. Its adjustable tremolo and sensitive crescendo pedal give the organist an intimacy of expressive control unequalled by other instruments. It plugs into the ordinary home electric current as simply as attaching a lamp, making good the belief of its inventor, Laurens Hammond, that organ music may now become as familiar to the home as piano music.

Miss Lang told authorities that the woman entered her shop, and appeared nervous, while looking at a few dresses. She left without making a purchase. If the woman was Mrs. Parsons, the report would conflict with the story told by Mrs. Anna Kupryanova, Russian-born intimate of Mrs. Parsons who said that her friend left home Wednesday morning at 11:15 with two strangers, an elderly man and woman.

RE V. JARDINE TO VISIT U. S. (Continued from Page One) Bernice Lang, who operates a dress shop in Smithtown, N. Y., and New York, declared that a woman resembling the missing Mrs. Parsons was in her New York shop Wednesday afternoon about six hours after she was reported to have left her Long Island farm for the last time.
